DAVISON.—

New York Clearing House.

At a special meeting of the Clearing House Committee of the New York Clearing House Association, held this day, the following minute was unanimously adopted, by a rising vote:

The connection of Henry Pomeroy Davison in the early part of his career with the New York Clearing House Association and the position attained by him in the financial world make it peculiarly fitting that this memorial should be placed on the records of the Association.

Mr. Davison was elected Scoretary of the Association in 1900 and reelected to that office in 1901. He was a member of the Committee on Admissions during the years 1907 and 1908. In 1907 he was a member of the Association with the issue of Clearing House certificates made necessary by the financial disturbance of that year. Impressed by observations made in that special work, he became a warm advocate of the organization of the department for examinations of members under the direction of a Clearing House Examiner, which was created in 1911. When he became a partner in J. P. Morgan & Company it removed him from the sphere of Clearing House activities, but his interest therein was always maintained and his advice frequently sought and willingly given.

Mr. Davison possessed in an unusual degree the equipment of the successful henker, combined with a charming personality. His keen and rapid analysis of a subject and his confidence and courage in carrying negotiations and undertakings to a conclusion were remarkable. His achievements will be an inspiration to all, and it is a matter of universal regret that a life so valuable, with a mind so brilliant, should have so early come to a close when the world needs constructive and undertakings to a conclusion were remarkable. His achievements will be an inspiration to all, and it is a matter of universal regret that a life so valuable, with a mind so brilliant, should have so early come to a close when the world needs constructive and ungerishable monument to his genius.
